

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Federal agents operating in and about Youngstown, Ohio, succeeded in unearthing much literature of the German propaganda type. This find consisted of 2500 copies of Pastor Russell's book "The Finished Mystery." It seems from reports that the I. W. W. crowd is working hand in hand with Pastor Russell's disciples. Five persons are held and charged with having in their possession propaganda literature. It might be well for the U. S. Government to send some Federal agents to Christian county for an investigation. Unless the department of justice provided soon with more authority in the form of laws and is able to increase its detective force to a point sufficient to cope with the situation there is every indication that the public will take into their own hands the punishment of acts of disloyalty. The Kentuckian does not countenance acts of violence or mob law but counsels the public to be patient and co-operate with the government agents in every way possible in bringing to justice—and, speedily, justice to that—any and all violators of the Federal laws and acts of disloyalty, or propaganda.

The 1919 contingent of the French army (youths of 19 years) is just going to the barracks to begin training. Although called out a year before the usual time, these young men are in better condition physically than any of their predecessors. They are starting out in as high spirits as the army did in August, 1914, shouting from the car windows that they will beat the Germans.

Indiana may have to lower its standard requirements for public school teachers, according to Horace Ellis, state superintendent of public instruction, who stated the application for instructors' berths in Indiana public schools had fallen off 90 per cent from that of last year. "The shortage," said Mr. Ellis, "is due to the war. Both men and women teachers from Indiana are nobly represented in our armies and war time institutions."

Ignored Body Evaporation.
To the early days of steam vessels a fring suit was invented. A thin metal or asbestos cover was lined with rubber. The wearer carried a small water tank on his back. By opening a small valve near his shoulder he could sprinkle his bare skin. The inventor caulked to death, notes a writer, trying to prove his point. The sad part of it was that he was on the wrong track entirely. The suit made body evaporation nearly impossible, and that's really what cools us.

"A SPLENDID TONIC"

Says Hixson Lady Who, On Doctor's Advice, Took Cardui And Is Now Well.

Hixson, Tenn.—"About 10 years ago I was..." says Mrs. J. B. Gadd, of this place. "I suffered with a pain in my left side, could not sleep at night with this pain, always in the left side..."

My doctor told me to use Cardui. I took one bottle, which helped me and after my baby came, I was stronger and better, but the pain was still there.

I at first let it go, but began to get weak and in a run-down condition, so I decided to try some more Cardui, which I did.

This last Cardui which I took made me much better, in fact, cured me. It has been a number of years, still I have no return of this trouble. I feel it was Cardui that cured me, and I recommend it as a splendid female tonic.

Don't allow yourself to become weak and run-down from womanly troubles. Take Cardui. It should surely help you, as it has so many thousands of other women in the past 40 years. Headache, backache, sideache, nervousness, sleeplessness, tired-out feeling, are all signs of womanly trouble. Other women get relief by taking Cardui. Why not you? All druggists.

VARIETY IN SEACOAST TRIP

Improvement of Body and Mind Assured by an Annual Wandering Along Ocean's Borders.

There can be nothing more delightful than a seacoast trip from Mount Desert to St. Augustine, and it will furnish enough variety to last a lifetime. Every kind of scenery, from the towering rocks of Maine to the sandy flats of New Jersey; every kind of soil, and every kind of bathing.

But it really doesn't much matter where the visitor goes, so long as he keeps within sight of the sea. There is always something to interest, instruct and amuse. It is pure enjoyment to sit on the sand and inhale the salt air, and when tired of that pastime, there is crabbing, sailing, fishing, bathing, and, in early morning, digging for clams. For running, walking, driving or riding there is nothing better than the beach, and nothing more healthful.

Where the coast is rocky, or broken, the hunt for shells and marine animals is a never-ending pleasure for young and old, and one not easily tired of.

In fact, the sea is a school of instruction as well as a sanatorium. It broadens the mind as well as the chest, and it is a dull boy or girl who can spend a fortnight by the sea without being mentally, morally and physically bettered by the experience.—Exchange.

JANEY PROPOSES

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

David Blair sat behind the screen of palms, a frowning spectator upon a scene of gayety. Always his place seemed to be just at the outer edge of things, never as a participant. Years ago—for youth seemed a confused memory to David, he had not danced or flirted, or even engaged in harmless revelry with his college companions. Seriously, he had wondered at their simple enjoyment as he applied himself to study. The admiring glances of girls he had been too absorbed to see, alike their perplexity and disappointment at his indifference, had proved unnoticed.

Now, David, successful man of business, authority upon matters of moment, realized suddenly and gloomily that pleasure had repaid him with the forgetfulness he had given. Not that it mattered—much. Janey still came to him with her merry or tearful confidences, Janey, with an utter disregard for decorum, stopped at his bachelor home on dismal, dreary evenings to make his tea for him, to sit there in a bright red frock with her little red slippers before the fire, talking as only Janey could talk.

After her return from that last year at college there had been a self-confident pose in the girl's bearing which had not been there before. David was impatiently disapproving of each suitor who appeared upon the scene. No man seemed quite good enough for Janey, and these conceited young idiots—David fumed at their assurance. The choice had now sifted down to two. Frankly Janey—discussed her cavaliers before David's study fire.

"They both want to marry me," she remarked one evening.

Janey—married! The thought caught in a painful manner at David's heartstrings.

"Wait," he advised hastily, "do not be in a hurry, child; marriage is for a lifetime."

"But if I wait like you, David," she had innocently complained, "I may never choose at all."

So this night behind the palms he had watched her flitting about, a sought after vision in white, but there was, he fancied, a cloud upon the girl's piquant face.

Jack Irving moped in an opposite corner against the wall; Billy Hayes was conspicuously attentive to every one but his adored Janey—what was the matter?

"David," asked a small, meek voice, "may I hide with you here for a while?" Janey herself parted the curtains of his seclusion.

"You see, David, I'm in rather an embarrassing predicament. Those silly boys, both of them, think that I'm engaged."

David wheeled about sharply. "Engaged to whom?"

Janey studied her outspread fingers. "To them," she said. David stared. "Jack did ask me last night," she confessed, "and Billy said something of the sort while we were driving this morning, but—"

"But—" mocked David. "Well, are you engaged to either?"

Janey sighed. "—don't know," she answered.

"Don't know!" David was exasperated; also his heart was hammering heavily.

"It was this way," the girl explained. "Last night Jack got to talking about his promising future, and—how he would like me to share it, David, and we could go south on those business trips of his in the winter, and have a bungalow out near our golf links in summer, and he wanted to know when I would decide, and I said something about leaving it until tonight."

"Under those circumstances," David answered slowly, "it would appear that young Irving has a right to consider you engaged."

"Wait," begged Janey. "This morning, you remember, I went for a ride with Billy, and Billy talked a good deal as Jack had, only—he wanted me to marry him when he gets his degree, and if I would—I was to give him the first dance this evening. He knew that Jack had spoken for escort. And, David, honestly, when Billy came forward I forgot all about his old degree and I gave him—the first dance. Ever since then the two boys have been scowling at each other, and—bully me. So—Janey threw out her hands despairingly—"there you are!"

David was also scowling. "You should not play with them that way," he said severely. "Both are nice boys, and it is not fair. Make your choice and find your happiness. What more can you desire, Janey?" David sighed. "They have all the stakes, youth—that greatest stake of all, and their future before them."

"Sometimes," said Janey, her voice was strangely unsteady. "It's just as well to have a little of the future behind one, David. Sometimes it makes a man kinder, more understanding. And always, we women cannot choose our own happiness, we—we have to wait until—"

"Until," interposed David, he had arisen to his feet.

With a little tremulous smile the girl put out her hands to him. "Until," she finished, "some dear old stupid realizes that youth is not the greatest thing in the world, and that hair turning white about the temples is the loveliest kind of hair."

"Darling!" cried the man enraptured. And Janey nodded her head. "Yes, David," she said "I've proposed."

"Gets-It"—2 Drops—Then to the Dance!

"Goodnight to Corn Pains—Corn Peel Off With 'Gets-It'."

"Say, girls, you can laugh at tight shoes, or damp, corn-pulling weather, big bumpy corns, calluses on the soles of your feet, corns between the toes, hard and soft corns,

"It's All Off With This Fierce Corn Now—'Gets-It' Is Magic."

If you will just touch the corn or callus with a few drops of "Gets-It," what a blessed relief it gives to corn pain! You won't limp any more; you can enjoy the dance every minute. Then to see how that corn or callus will come right off complete, like a banana peel and without the least pain, is just wonderful. "Gets-It" is the biggest seller among corn removers in the world today, simply because it is so wonderfully simple and always works. Be sure you get "Gets-It." "Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back-corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'Doby E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Hopkinsville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by L. L. Elgin.

WAS NOT ALWAYS 'DECEMBER'

Because of Changes Made in the Calendar, Twelfth Month Has Been Given Many Names.

The name of December is no longer appropriate, for it is derived from "decem," the Latin word meaning "ten." The name was first applied to the Romans when the year was divided into ten months, with the addition of supplementary days to complete the period required for a revolution of the earth around the sun.

When the calendar of Romulus was amended in 713 B. C. by Numa Pompilius and the year was divided into twelve months, December became the twelfth month, but retained its original name. The Emperor Commodus, who reigned in the second century, attempted to change the name of December to Amazonius, in honor of a fair favorite of that name whom he had painted to resemble an Amazon. This innovation was not popular, and when Commodus died from poison administered by another feminine favorite the name of Amazonius died with him.

The ancient Saxons called the last month Winter Monat, which was afterward changed to Helig Monat, or holy month, when they were converted to Christianity. The modern Germans again changed the name to Christ-Monat, because the month contains the anniversary of the birth of Christ.

STOLE MARCH ON CONFRERES

Secret of Dillingham's Success in Obtaining Interviews Revealed Through an Accident.

Years ago when Charles Dillingham was a reporter for the Chicago Tribune, his assignment was to interview prominent hotel arrivals. His colleagues in the same department on other leading Chicago dailies were Frank Vanderlip, Finley Peter Dunne and George Ade. The Tribune frequently published exclusive interviews about distinguished visitors, and Dillingham's confreres could not understand how he alone was able to reach these arrivals, inasmuch as their cards were always sent to the latter's rooms on the same tray with Dillingham's. One day when they had all been sent to interview Chauncey M. Depew, Dillingham happened to have stepped to the cigar counter when the bellboy returned to the waiting group, saying "Not in." Each reporter reached out for his own card. Under Ade's name had been written "The Cattleman's Guide;" under Vanderlip's, "Representing the Poultry Journal," and under Dunne's, "Editor the Prairie Fire." The remaining card read, "Charles Bancroft Dillingham, Chicago Tribune."

BOLSHEVIK IDEALS.

Schuyler Merritt, the new congressman from Stamford, said at a dinner:

"As one of the heads of a large manufacturing concern, I am much interested in the bolshevik propaganda among the Russian factories."

"I am afraid the bolshevik ideas won't go. I heard the other day of a Russian employer who said mildly to a delegation of striking bolshevik hands:

"I can understand your demands for an increase of 900 per cent in wages, but why do you insist on my reducing your hours of work from ten a day to two?"

"A young bolshevik struck his employer jovially on the back."

"We've got to have time," he laughed, "to spend our increased wages, haven't we?"

"I—er—oh, I want some cigars, please," she said hurriedly, under her breath, hastening to add: "But not for myself—for my husband."

"Certainly, madam; what kind do you like?"

"Oh, the best—quite the best, please."

"Certainly, madam; strong or medium?"

"The very strongest you've got, please," she answered in decided tones. "My husband was complaining only the other day that the last lot he bought all broke in his pocket, so they had better be strong, hadn't they?"

And the young man behind the counter hadn't the heart to contradict her.

A CALL TO PRAYER.

Mr. Editor:

Will you allow me space to say that I think the most significant and important thing that has so far been done in this community for our army and navy, and our Allies, was the formal call of the ministers of the city to meet and pray for our men and our Allies in Europe. Yes, I repeat it, that call to prayer was the most significant and important thing that the community has done. And yet we have given our boys, contributed to the support of the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and have bought Liberty Loan Bonds. We can't do too much on any of those lines to make our fighting forces efficient, and the urgency of American-wide co-operation can not be emphasized too strongly. But it is more important to have the blessing of God upon our soldiers and marines, and the way to secure this is by prayer. I am afraid we have gotten behind with our praying and don't know it. Without intending it we have gotten out of the way of praying, and with many ministers and church members the only place for prayer is on a program of some kind, and by this neglect of the most important thing in life, and by our programs of prayer in a heartless and mechanical worship we have insulted our adorable Lord and grieved the blessed Holy Spirit! We ought to repent and we must repent, and do our first work or suffer the direful consequences.

Besides the ordinary calls for prayer in normal times, there is now upon the whole world and Hopkinsville an extraordinary necessity to pray, and no member of the church or member of this community should be so audacious as to refuse to pray, nor offer an excuse for not praying. Then when all else fails, and many it will be too late to avail.

What a proper thing to lighten a noon day prayer meeting in the heart of the city for a season of prayer for 25 or 30 minutes every day. Business and professional men and women should hail with enthusiasm the privilege of such a season. On old Fulton street New York, for an hundred years there has been held a noon day prayer meeting for the convenience and benefit of business men, and many have been the conversions of men, in that prayer meeting, and thousands have gone there and gotten strength to continue the fight against the world, the flesh and the years there has been held a noon day prayer meeting at the Princess Theatre will become a fixed institution in our city and that all of our business men and professional men will reorganize their engagements and business so as to attend the place of prayer.

Mr. Business Man, if you are a praying man, and if you believe in the efficacy of prayer, now is a good time for you to show it. And as a pastor if I were able to go and failed to attend, I should feel like I was due the community an explanation or an apology. What office or duty can a preacher discharge in a community fought with greater benefit than to unite with praying people for 25 minutes to pray and encourage others to pray.

And as an invalid, for the time being, let me suggest to the leaders from day to day, and they need not be ministers all the time, make the occasions seasons of prayer. Don't talk too much, but pray. Select a lesson from God's word and read it as a message from God to us men and women of this day and this practical old world, and cause those who hear to understand the meaning, and then pray. Let the meetings be occasions when you are come together to hear what God the Lord has to say, and there penitently, reverently, obediently seek his forgiveness and seek his blessing upon our cause, which we believe to be the cause of humanity.

LOUIS POWELL.

BULGARIA A RICE COUNTRY.

Bulgaria possesses admirable advantages for rice growing on an extensive scale, climate and soil both being favorable, especially along the Maritza river and the marshy banks of the Struma and the Vardar. Rumania is too far north and Serbia too rugged to permit of rice culture, but in southern Bulgaria and Macedonia are found many plains along the rivers well adapted for great plantations. The hilly country in northern Bulgaria, where many small rivers take their course to the Danube, is favorable for rice growing, although there are no extensive plains in that region.

Formerly there were rice fields in the neighborhood of Vratza and Ferdinand, but these have been turned into groves of mulberry trees for the rearing of silkworms. About the town of Kustendil the rice fields have given place almost entirely to fruit orchards, and the same is true of Dupniza.

PRINCESS TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Comedy holds full sway in "Amarilly of Clothes Line Alley," the new Arteract picture following "Stella Maris," which stars Mary Pickford, and which will be exhibited at the Princess theatre, Today and Tomorrow.

While in every picture presenting Miss Pickford there has been more or less comedy and the star has time and again proven herself a comedienne of rare ability as well as an actress capable of any height of emotion acting, it is said that there has never before been a Pickford photograph wherein humor predominated to such an extent as in this new story of the slums.

There are many moments of genuine pathos and any number of thrills in the course of the picture, but laughter will hold sway, overcoming momentary predisposition to tears. Throughout the story "Our Mary," a wise, dainty withal, presents a convincing figure of the little tenement girl straying far afield into the realms of the idle rich, lured by the blandishments of a scion of wealth, but returns at last to her natural environments, where she finds happiness.

REX TODAY.

BEST IN "WITHOUT HONOR."

Walt Whitman, well known actor, wins new honors in his latest picture, "Without Honor," in which he supports Margery Wilson.

He is cast in a most difficult role, that of a deacon whose eyes are dimmed by bigotry. He sees only the wrath of God in the scriptures which he constantly quotes, and overlooks the messages of everlasting mercy and kindness. Mr. Whitman offers what critics declare is a truly marvelous characterization.

REX TOMORROW.

"Shall We Forgive Her," the screen picturization of the famous stage play by Charles Sarver. June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley are the stars of the production and the story deals with the West and the East and the trials and tribulations of a young man whom she had loved as a child. Fast, intense action is the dominating feature of this remarkable picture. Things move at a rapid rate from start to finish and as everything is logical and consistent and as the characters are clearly defined and the story entertaining, "Shall We Forgive Her" makes splendid entertainment.

Also.

"The Eagle's Eye," by William J. Flynn, the recently retired chief of the United States Secret Service, presented by The Whartons, the noted producers of serials. Each episode reveals the facts hitherto unpublished of a spy plot of the Imperial German Government detected and balked by the Secret Service, interwoven in a thrilling dramatic story in which King Baggott and Marguerite Snow play the principal roles.

DAYLIGHT SAVING FOWLS
DISTURB MRS. O'REILLY.

(By International News Service.)

Portland, Ore. April 17.—Chickens that snore and sing in their sleep disturb Mrs. O'Reilly, who says that the noises that the hens make wake up the roosters, and that the male birds add to the general racket. Declaring that these hens are going the Daylight Saving law one better, she has complained to the police, who have suggested to Mrs. O'Reilly's neighbors that they put mufflers and Maxon silencers on their fowls.

NO EPIDEMIC OF SMALLPOX

BUT SEVERAL CASES ARE SCATTERED OVER COUNTY—VACCINATION URGED.

As a matter of precaution and safe guard, Dr. J. H. Riee, County Health Officer and Dr. J. W. Harned, City Health Officer, are urging everybody in the city and county who has not protected himself with a recent satisfactory vaccination to be vaccinated at once. At present there are six smallpox cases in the county according to the health officers. There is one at Crofton, one at Howell, one at Dogwood, one in the pethouse on the poor house farm, and two in Hopkinsville. While there is no fear of any immediate spreading of the disease, yet nobody can tell when a whole community may become infected and an epidemic created. Vaccination is the surest and simplest safeguard against this possibility and that is why this request is sent out.

SENATOR STONE.

Senator W. J. Stone of Missouri, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee and for many years one of the prominent democratic leaders died Sunday of a stroke of paralysis suffered last Saturday. Sen. Stone suffered the stroke while on a street car on his way to the senate office building.

At the bedside were Mrs. Stone and their children. Federal Judge Kimbrough Stone, of Kansas City; Mrs. John W. Parkinson, of St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss E. Mabel Stone and niece, Miss Margaret Winston, of St. Louis. All the members of the Missouri delegation in congress were at the home during the day and there were scores of other callers among officials and members of congress.

That evening the body was taken to Nevada, Mo., Senator Stone's old home for burial there Thursday by the Nevada Masonic lodge.

Senator Stone was in public life for 45 years.

At the entry of the United States into the war, Senator Stone performed the trying feat of antagonizing his own party administration and then realigning himself with it in a generally satisfactory manner. It was in connection with the bill proposing the arming of American merchant ships that he took sharp issue with President Wilson. He stood with the dozen senators whose opposition caused the failure of that measure at the close of the sixty-fourth congress, and brought down the denunciation of the president upon "the wilful twelve." While Senator Stone made no apologies for his course on that occasion he always contended it was a strict line with his convictions, and as he believed, in protection of America's interests.

His opposition to the declaration of war on Germany was also pronounced. He did not seek, however, to place

His opposition to the declaration of obstacles in the way of a consideration and transferred the leadership to Senator Hitchcock, next ranking democratic member of the commit-

GRANGE SALE

ABOUT 300 HEAD OF CATTLE

lee. He believed that American participation should be avoided if possible, but when the die was cast for war, he changed over night. He took his place with the supporters of war measures and consistently maintained that attitude.

Although he had served in the house of representatives and had been governor of his state, Senator Stone first attracted national attention in connection with Mr. Bryan's first campaign for the presidency in 1896. He became the Missouri member of the national democratic committee and soon took front rank among the Bryan managers, justifying a reputation for shrewdness and foresight—ness he already had gained in Missouri.

In national as well as in state politics he worked quietly seeking for effects. To this quality he owed the sobriquet of "Gum-Shoe Bill" and his friends say that he never sought to avoid the use of that name for himself.

Senator Stone was born in Kentucky May 7, 1848.

His successor to hold office until the next general election in November will be named by Gov. Gardner of Missouri, who is a democrat. Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, ranking democrat of the foreign relations committee, is expected to succeed to the chairmanship.

67,716 MEN

EXCUSED FROM MILITARY SERVICE
UNDER VOCATION PROVISIONS.

Under provisions of the selective-service law making specified vocations a ground for exemption or discharge, apart from the "necessary industries" dealt with by the district boards, 67,716 men were excused from military duty.

Of the men exempted 1,666 were Federal or State officers; ministers, 3,976; divinity students, 3,144; in the military and naval service, 47,822.

County and municipal officials numbering 889 were discharged; custom-house clerks, 171; mail employees, 1,476; arsenal workmen, 2,358; Federal employees designated by the President 1,777; pilots, 1,772; mariners, 2,666.

TWO MORE DAYS PRAYER SERVICE

The noon-day prayer services being held at the Princess theatre at 11:30 a. m. are not as largely attended as might be, but those who attend compose a very serious and patriotic lot of citizens. Each day one of the several ministers has charge as leader and reads the scriptures and makes a few appropriate remarks. These services are very interesting and instructive and everyone should attend if possible. Be present today for 25 minutes and you will want to come again tomorrow. Rev. J. W. Stiles led yesterday and had a fine service. Rev. H. H. Jones will lead today and Rev. Thomas Chapman will have charge of the Friday service. Only two more unless there is some action taken to continue these meetings. Your prayers are needed for the allies and our boys. No further urging should be necessary to induce one to spend these 25 precious moments in appeals to the God who is over all.

FOR SALE—Wall paper 5c to 30c per roll. Stock rolled each week. Also "Stick Right" paste, powdered form. See Mrs. Emma Catlett & Son. Phone 790. 311 S. Walnut st.
